

Can you give some advantages to living in the country despite some of the inconveniences?

There are benefits to country living that you won't find anywhere else. There are always going to be some trade-offs, like having to drive two hours just to go to work or meet your friends who still live downtown. On the other hand, if you can't get enough of green meadows and big blue skies, the benefits of country living may just outweigh the negatives.
